

EP08 | WHEN THE SKY LEARNED TO FALL

Final Bar Twelve-O-Seven Edition • Six English Songs + Mureka Prompts

最終世界觀：Aster 是一顆年輕的星星。雨夜裡，他走進地圖上沒有標記的 12:07 時空酒吧。牆上的時鐘永遠停在 12:07；它不是用來計時，而是提醒每一位迷失的旅人：有些光的使命，不是永遠留在天空，而是在某個人快看不見明天時，燃成一條路。故事不是愛情。Aster 對 Mira 沒有浪漫關係；他看見她快被生活壓垮，於是在酒吧裡理解自己的命運，選擇犧牲小我，成為流星，將希望留下。Mira 最終沒有被「拯救」或瞬間治癒；她只是選擇多走一步。統一聲線：一位清澈、真誠、帶少年感的英文男聲主唱；約 13-16 歲的情緒色彩。Aster 是唯一主唱。不要女聲、duet、情歌互唱、低沉誘惑嗓、暗黑 K-drama 或惡魔／天使元素。

01 | Before I Had a Name

Chapter: The bar tells a young star why he was given light

Mureka Prompt

Plain Text

Create a 3 minute English youth cinematic indie-pop song at 98 BPM in A minor, 1

Lyrics

Plain Text

[Intro]

Before I had a name,
The clock knew why I shined.

[Verse 1]

Rain found me at a nameless door
At the end of an alley of blue.
No sign above it, only light
Spilling out like it already knew.

Inside, the room was warm and still,
Old bottles caught the amber flame.
A clock above the wooden bar
Said twelve-oh-seven, never changed.

[Pre-Chorus]

I asked the quiet, "Why am I here?
I am only one small star."
The hands did not move, but somehow
I heard, "Light remembers what you are."

[Chorus]

Before I had a name, the clock knew why I shined,
Before I had a road, it drew one through the night.
I was given light to show the way
When somebody cannot see the day.
Before I had a name, the clock held back the time,
And in that room outside the rain,
I learned a star is more than bright.

[Post-Chorus]

Show the way,
Show the way.

[Verse 2]

Through the window, streets were wet,

The city moved in tired lines.
So many faces passed the glass,
Carrying storms they could not name.

The bartender never spoke a word,
The clock kept burning soft and gold.
I saw a girl beneath the rain
Walk like her future had grown cold.

[Pre-Chorus]
I could not touch the world below,
I had no hands, no human voice.
But in the silence of that room,
I learned that light can make a choice.

[Chorus]
Before I had a name, the clock knew why I shined,
Before I had a road, it drew one through the night.
I was given light to show the way
When somebody cannot see the day.
Before I had a name, the clock held back the time,
And in that room outside the rain,
I learned a star is more than bright.

[Bridge]
Not to stay where nothing breaks,
Not to hide above the blue.
A small light is a promise
That the dark can still move through.

[Final Chorus]
Before I had a name, the clock knew why I shined,
Before I had a road, it drew one through the night.
I was given light to show the way,
To leave a path for one more day.
Before I had a name, I had a sky,
Now I know a star can ask why.

[Outro]
Twelve-oh-seven,
Show the way.

02 | She Never Looked Up

Chapter: From the bar window, Aster sees Mira below

Mureka Prompt

Plain Text

Create a 3 minute English nocturnal youth alt-pop song at 106 BPM in B minor. 0

Lyrics

Plain Text

[Intro]

She never looked up,
So I kept the window bright.

[Verse 1]

From the bar behind the rain,
I watched the city turn to glass.
The clock was still at twelve-oh-seven,
While the midnight buses passed.

Then I saw her leave the station,
Gray coat, canvas bag, head down.
Every puddle held the sky,
But she only watched the ground.

[Pre-Chorus]

I moved the clouds away from blue,
I let one small light through.
But heavy days can make a person
Forget the sky is there too.

[Chorus]

She never looked up, so I kept the window bright,
One small star above the longest night.
She never looked up, she walked so slow,
Carrying more than the wet streets know.
I cannot take her storm away,
I cannot tell her what to say.
But I can keep one light alive,
So hope still has a place to rise.

[Post-Chorus]

Keep it bright,
Keep it bright.

[Verse 2]

The old clock warmed the empty room,
The bottles caught its amber glow.
The bartender looked beyond the glass,
Like he had seen this road before.

I asked, "What can a distant star
Do for someone lost below?"
The clock said nothing, but the rain
Taught me that light can stay and show.

[Pre-Chorus]

I have no hands to pull her close,
No voice to reach her ear.
So I will guard the piece of night
That says the dawn is near.

[Chorus]

She never looked up, so I kept the window bright,
One small star above the longest night.
She never looked up, she walked so slow,
Carrying more than the wet streets know.
I cannot take her storm away,
I cannot tell her what to say.
But I can keep one light alive,
So hope still has a place to rise.

[Bridge]

Maybe light is not a cure,
Maybe it cannot erase pain.
Maybe it is just a doorway
Left open in the rain.

[Final Chorus]

She never looked up, so I kept the window bright,
One small star above the longest night.
She never looked up—not yet, not then—
But one day she may look again.
The clock stayed still, the rain came down,
And hope kept glowing over town.

[Outro]

She never looked up...
Not yet.

03 | Where Falling Stars Go

Chapter: The 12:07 clock reveals the cost of leaving the sky

Mureka Prompt

Plain Text

Create a 3 minute 10 second English acoustic-electronic cinematic pop song at 9.

Lyrics

Plain Text

[Intro]

Where do falling stars go
When they leave the sky?

[Verse 1]

The bar was quiet after rain,
The amber light was low.
I sat beneath the old wall clock
And asked what I should know.

Its hands were resting past the twelve,
Its minute hand just past the one.
It held the world at twelve-oh-seven,
Like a night that would not run.

[Pre-Chorus]

I asked, "If I go down from here,
Will any road lead back?"
The clock kept still, the room grew warm,
And silence answered that.

[Chorus]

Where falling stars go,
The clock will still be still.
Where falling stars go,
They leave the sky by will.
No road goes back to where they shone,
No hand can pull them home.
Where falling stars go,

They carry light alone.

[Verse 2]

Outside, I saw the girl below,
Her shadow crossed the door.
She did not see the hidden bar,
Or know what stars were for.

The bartender set an empty glass
Beneath the clock's soft gold.
I saw my face inside the light,
Still young, still scared, still small.

[Pre-Chorus]

The clock did not ask me to fall,
It only let me see:
A light that never leaves its sky
Can never learn to lead.

[Chorus]

Where falling stars go,
The clock will still be still.
Where falling stars go,
They leave the sky by will.
No road goes back to where they shone,
No hand can pull them home.
Where falling stars go,
They carry light alone.

[Bridge]

If I stay, I keep forever,
Safe above the blue.
If I go, I lose the whole sky,
But leave a road in view.

[Final Chorus]

Where falling stars go,
The clock will still be still.
Where falling stars go,
They choose the cost by will.
The room outside of time will know
Why I have to go.
Where falling stars go,
I may be meant to go.

[Outro]

Twelve-oh-seven,
Let me know.

04 | I Chose to Fall

Chapter: Aster leaves Bar Twelve-O-Seven and accepts his destiny

Mureka Prompt

Plain Text

Create a 3 minute 5 second English high-impact youth cinematic pop song at 112 BPM

Lyrics

Plain Text

[Intro]

I was born to shine,
But I chose to fall.

[Verse 1]

The door behind me closed in rain,
The bar light caught the street.
The clock was still at twelve-oh-seven,
Its gold ran at my feet.

I looked back once through amber glass,
Then up into the blue.
The room had shown me why I came,
The sky showed what to do.

[Pre-Chorus]

I cannot fix the whole world,
I cannot make the rain stop.
But I can be one bright second
That makes someone look up.

[Chorus]

I chose to fall,
Because hope has a cost.
I gave my forever

So one more life is not lost.
I was born to shine,
But I chose to fall.
One second of light
Can be enough for us all.

[Post-Chorus]
Look up, look up,
The sky still has a door.
Look up, look up,
There can be something more.

[Verse 2]
The clouds opened like a doorway,
The clock light stayed behind.
For the first time leaving heaven
Felt like choosing what was mine.

I heard the stars above me call,
I felt the dark let go.
But I had never known my purpose
Till I chose the road below.

[Pre-Chorus]
I am not asking her to heal,
I am not asking her to forget.
Just breathe beneath this falling fire,
And take the next step yet.

[Chorus]
I chose to fall,
Because hope has a cost.
I gave my forever
So one more life is not lost.
I was born to shine,
But I chose to fall.
One second of light
Can be enough for us all.

[Bridge]
When my name becomes a gold line,
When my voice becomes the rain,
Do not call it disappearing.
Call it light with a name.

[Final Chorus]
I chose to fall,
Because hope has a cost.

The clock at twelve-oh-seven
Will remember what was not lost.
I was born to shine,
But I chose to fall.
One second of light
Was worth my life, was worth it all.

[Outro]
The door is open.
Look up.

05 | Burning Through the Blue

Chapter: Aster burns through the clouds, carrying the bar's gold light into the city

Mureka Prompt

Plain Text

Create a 3 minute 15 second English meteor pulse pop song at 102 BPM in G minor

Lyrics

Plain Text

[Intro]
I can feel the blue beneath my fire.

[Verse 1]
The clouds are getting closer now,
The rain is writing on my light.
Every mile I leave the sky,
A little piece of me turns bright.

Behind me in the distant dark,
One window stayed like amber flame.
The clock at twelve-oh-seven
Held the reason for my name.

[Pre-Chorus]

The sky is getting farther,
The ground is coming near.
Every spark I let go
Says, "Morning can be here."

[Chorus]

I am burning through the blue,
Every spark can light the way.
I am burning through the blue,
Giving all I have to light the day.
If I vanish from the view,
If the dark forgets the path I drew,
Let the fire find their eyes,
I am burning through the blue.

[Post-Chorus]

Through the blue,
Through the blue.

[Verse 2]

I pass the moon like an old friend,
I pass the clouds that knew my name.
Nothing in the world can hold me,
Nothing will stay quite the same.

Below, she stops beside the river,
The wet street catches gold and rain.
For one small second she can see
The sky is not entirely gone.

[Pre-Chorus]

The bar light is a memory,
The clock is far behind.
But twelve-oh-seven lives inside
The path I leave in light.

[Chorus]

I am burning through the blue,
Every spark can light the way.
I am burning through the blue,
Giving all I have to light the day.
If I vanish from the view,
If the dark forgets the path I drew,
Let the fire find their eyes,
I am burning through the blue.

[Bridge]

I do not need the whole sky

If one small light can reach the ground.
I do not need tomorrow
If courage can be found.
The dark is not the ending,
The rain can still turn new.
I leave a road of gold behind me,
Burning through the blue.

[Final Chorus]
I am burning through the blue,
Every spark can light the way.
I am burning through the blue,
Giving all I have to light the day.
The clock will hold its twelve-oh-seven,
The city will remember why:
A small star crossed the storm tonight,
Burning through the blue.

[Outro]
Morning,
Coming through.

06 | After the Light

Chapter: Mira walks past the unmarked bar door and chooses another day

Mureka Prompt

Plain Text

Create a 3 minute 20 second English bittersweet morning-after indie-pop song at

Lyrics

Plain Text

[Intro]
The star is gone,
But the clock is still awake.

[Verse 1]

The rain has stopped above the roofs,
The city is a quieter gray.
A gold line fades inside a cloud,
Then slowly gives itself away.

She finds the letter in her coat,
The one that says she has to leave.
She reads it once, then folds it small,
Not because she stops the grief.

[Pre-Chorus]

At the end of one blue alley,
There is a door without a name.
Behind it, twelve-oh-seven
Keeps a small unchanging flame.

[Chorus]

After the light,
I took one more step.
After the night,
I had not lost myself yet.
I cannot bring the star back,
I cannot make the whole world new.
But after the light,
I remembered what to do.

[Post-Chorus]

One more step,
One more step.

[Verse 2]

The coffee shop begins to open,
A bus pulls through the morning rain.
She walks past the unmarked doorway,
But the amber finds her again.

She does not call it magic,
She does not say the hurt is gone.
She only chooses one more day,
Then maybe tries another one.

[Pre-Chorus]

The star is gone forever,
But not the way it changed her.
A little gold inside the gray
Is more than enough to carry her.

[Chorus]

After the light,
I took one more step.
After the night,
I had not lost myself yet.
I cannot bring the star back,
I cannot make the whole world new.
But after the light,
I remembered what to do.

[Bridge]

Somewhere past the clouds,
No answer comes in time.
But every time I look above,
I carry that small light inside.

[Final Chorus]

After the light,
I took one more step.
After the night,
I gave tomorrow what was left.
The star is gone forever,
But hope is still alive.
After the light,
I looked up at the sky.

[Outro]

The door stays there.
The clock stays still.
Twelve-oh-seven.
